

Google Groups

Fwd: Country club republicans link with democratic ruling class: millions of voters orphaned vthomas

Feb 21, 2013 6:39 PM

Posted in group: Groundswell

Mark Levin is talking about this lengthy article by Angelo Codevilla tonight too; please take time as soon as possible to read it.

Next Wed meeting:

- Newt Gingrich will be addressing Groundswell on lack of Republican Leadership right now, and Rove. \(10 Min\)

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Morton Blackwell <MBlac...@leadershipinstitute.org>

Date: Thu, Feb 21, 2013 at 1:38 PM

Subject: Country club republicans link with democratic ruling class: millions of voters orphaned

Dear Fellow Conservative,

My old friend Angelo Codevilla has written a very interesting piece for Forbes about political dynamics within the Republican Party and between the Republican and Democratic parties. Please read his article.

Angelo is a first-class conservative intellectual, not an experienced political party activist. Millions of Americans share his analysis of what we used to call the Eastern Establishment Republicans. I prefer now to call them content-free Republicans. His insights should provoke much serious thought. In practical matters, though, the key question is always the same: What is to be done? American political history and my personal experiences persuade me that it would be much easier for conservatives to take over an existing major party than to create a new major party. Both courses are certainly difficult.

In any case, I think you will find his article well worth reading.

Cordially,

Morton

Here is your link:

<http://www.forbes.com/sites/realspin/2013/02/20/as-country-club-republicans-link-up-with-the-democratic-ruling-class-millions-of-voters-are-orphaned/>

As Country Club Republicans Link Up With The Democratic Ruling Class, Millions Of Voters Are Orphaned

By Angelo Codevilla